13. CURRENT BILLING

Southwest Gas bills customers on a per-therm basis; that is, for the amount of energy contained in the gas delivered. The current reading minus the previous reading, times the billing factor, equals the number of total therms you have used in the current billing period.

14. DELIVERY CHARGE

Delivery charge shows how many therms are billed multiplied by the applicable rate. The delivery charge for customers with installed natural gas air conditioning equipment will have a different rate for therms used for air conditioning and will reflect a seasonal rate change. A separate line item for each rate will be shown for any seasonal rate changes during your billing period.

Seasonal Rate Change

When your billing period occurs during the transition between season or rate changes, the new bill shows you how many days you are billed at the previous rate as well as how many days at the new rate. For example a line item may exist on one bill for "Winter Tier," "Summer First Tier," and "Summer Next Tier" to show the portion of your bill within each season changing from winter (Nov-Apr) to summer (May-Oct).

15. OTHER CHARGES

This includes other charges to your account such as Gas Cost, Universal Energy Charge, Basic Service Charge, Applicable Taxes, Service Establishment Charge, and Deposit Billing fees.

The Basic Service Charge is a monthly fee for costs incurred in providing your natural gas service.

Gas Cost – The gas cost portion of your bill changes four times each year, on January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1, to reflect the cost of natural gas purchased by SWG on behalf of its customers.
