

Did you know that while your laundry is tumbling around in a natural gas dryer your monthly utility bill can take a tumble too?

That's because drying laundry with a natural gas dryer is less expensive than using an electric model. Drying two loads of laundry in a natural gas dryer costs the same as drying one load in an electric dryer. Also, drying with natural gas fits into your busy schedule since there's no time-of-use or peak rate involved. Anytime is the right time to dry laundry.

Since the average family of four does eight loads of laundry per week*, your power bill can quickly take a tumble by using natural gas instead of electricity.

Drying Tips:

- Clean lint screen after each load
- Don't open dryer door unnecessarily
- Read fabric care labels for proper settings
- Remove clothes as soon as dryer stops
